Tunneling through

Workmen on Monday along KY 35 near the Kentucky Speedway got ready to assemble 25 concrete sections of a pedestrian tunnel that's going in underneath the highway. When complete, the tunnel will be 42-feet wide and 11-feet tall and will lead from new parking areas to the Speedway. Officials told to open Rt 16

What is usually a routine annual report to the Gallatin County Fiscal Court by officials from the Kentucky Transportation Cabinet turned contentious at last Thursday's February meeting.

Magistrates first heard a report about planned repairs on the county's rural state roads for the coming year. In response to a question, Kevin Rust from the Transportation Cabinet said there were no plans to repair a slip that had closed a section of RT. 16 near Glencoe for over a year. That revelation enraged Glencoe City Councilman JuJu Sullivan (See related story about Glencoe City Council on page three).

"Someone is going to get killed because of you,"

Sullivan said. "School bus drivers using the Cemetery Hill detour can't see when they make the turn onto U. S. 127 when it's dark. Our children's lives are at stake and it's a matter of time before a bunch of kids get killed."

Sullivan was not placated when Rust told him the $160,000 needed to fix the road wasn't in the Cabinet's budget for this year.

"This is an outrage," Sullivan said. "You're spending $3.5 million to widen a mile of U. S. 35 for the Kentucky Speedway which will be used one day a year but you can't spend $160,000 to save our children's lives. I worked for the state for over 20 years and I know how things work in Frankfort. That money is there, we're just not going to get it for some reason."

Glencoe/Veterans Memorial Magistrate Dudley Gullion was equally disturbed.

"I was in Frankfort last week and was guaranteed that road would be fixed this spring," he said. "Now, they're telling us there are no plans at all to fix it. Someone is lying to me and I don't like it one bit."

After the discussion, the court passed a resolution asking the state to repair the road as soon as possible. A copy of the resolution was sent to the Transportation Cabinet.

"We're going to stay on this until we get that road opened," said Judge/executive Ken McFarland.

Seven enter race for U. S. Congress

The field of candidates vying to succeed Republican U. S. Rep. Geoff Davis in the Fourth District is set and the race is expected to be expensive. Five Republicans and two Democrats will run for the seat that Davis has decided to leave.

On the Republican side, there is Lewis County Judge/executive Thomas Massie; Boone County Judge/executive Gary Moore; Oldham County resident and math teacher Brian Oerther; State Representative Alecia Webb-Edgington of Fort Wright and Fort Mitchell consultant Tom Wurtz.

Greg Frank of Corinth, and Grant County Democratic Chairman Bill Adkins are the Democrats in

The Fourth District, which includes Gallatin County, runs along the Ohio River from West Virginia to the Louisville suburbs. Because it has three major media markets, Cincinnati, Louisville and Huntington, West Virginia, it's considered one of the most expensive districts in the state to run a campaign.

The district encompasses 24 counties and is predominantly Republican having elected only one Democrat (Ken Lucas) to Congress since 1967.

Democrats are hoping a contentious Republican primary this spring could give them a chance in November.

Mayor French seeks payroll tax increase

Proposal tabled until council's next meeting

Mayor C.E. French proposed a city payroll tax increase at Monday's Warsaw City Council meeting. The .25 percent tax hike would last one year and raise money for the city's depleted General Fund.

Warsaw's current payroll tax rate (known as the Occupational License Fee) is one percent on every dollar earned in the city of Warsaw. The proposed rate would be 1.25 percent and would raise an extra $60,000 to $80,000 per year according to French.

"We have to catch up on the stuff we've gotten behind on over many years," he said. "Under previous mayors everybody's dipped into the well but I'm not going to dip in the well. It has to stop now."

French said he's cut the city budget as much as possible but it's still not enough to meet the city's financial obligations.

"I've cut everything I can find but now I've run out of options," he said. "If you see anything else to cut, please let me know."

Last month, council raised water and sewer fees in a close vote with French breaking a tie. At Monday's meeting, councilmen Nelson Brown and Jamie Gould balked at the new tax-hike proposal.

"I think we should wait till the end of this year to see how our budget does," said Brown. "I don't see how you can ask us to raise taxes now."

"The original one percent tax was supposed to furnish 24/7 police protection and we've never had that," said Gould. "If that one percent didn't do what it was supposed to, I don't see how we can ask the people to pay more taxes. I'm against it."

Warsaw council has been wrestling with the city's budget since accountant Jeff Woods delivered a bleak financial report last November. He said the city's General Fund operated at a $195,000 deficit last year and Warsaw could not continue at that rate.

After further discussion, council tabled Mayor French's new tax-hike proposal to consider it further before next month's meeting.

Aunt Gert has Valentine's Day advice

This and That

By Kelley Warnick
Editor

Aunt Gert was waiting at the door for me when I got to work Monday morning.

Even though the thermometer said it was below freezing, she was riding her shiny black moped. I asked her if she was cold.

"Heavens no, lover," she said. "Aunt Gert is always smoking hot. I have a special pair of electric undies I plug into my bike. They keep my whole body toasty warm in any weather and that's just how I like it."

I then asked her why she was up so early in the morning.

"I dropped by to see if you need my help," she said. "Tomorrow is Valentine's Day and everyone knows Auntie Gert is the Queen of Romance."

I thanked her for the offer but said I was more than capable of handling Valentine's Day by myself and had already picked up a heart-shaped box full of chocolates.

"No, No, No!" Gert said. "You give a woman chocolates and she'll ask if you want her rear end to be as big as a dump truck. Besides, sweets are such a cliché. You need to be original and creative if you want to spark a fire."

I should have known Gert wouldn't like my idea. I quickly grew weary of our conversation and prayed she would get out of the office so I could get to work.

"Let me tell you something else, Romeo," she said. "You can also forget about buying anything that plugs into a wall socket if you want to have a warm and cozy Valentine's Day. Show up with a toaster, vacuum cleaner or electric mixer and you'll be sleeping outside with Rover."

I asked Aunt Gert if lingerie would be a good option.

"Heavens no!" she gasped. "Everyone knows fancy underwear is for men, not women. Besides, if you buy a woman a sheer little something from Victoria's Secret, you're telling her you don't think she's sexy enough the way she is."

I then asked Gert if she had any other tips, hoping it would help to get her on her way.

"You bet, no one knows more about pleasing a woman than I do," Gert said.

"Forget about perfume, because every woman has her own scent and she doesn't need your help finding it," Gert said. "Other things that will surely put a damper on the big day are gift cards, a cute stuffed animal and any kind of cheap little trinket with a sappy saying on it."

Finally, I asked Gert if there was anything a man could get his sweetie on Valentine's Day that would be well received.

"Oh that's easy," she said. "Everybody knows diamonds are a girl's best friend and I expect to see you with some for me at my trailer just after dark."

With that, she ran out of the office, jumped on her bike and sprayed gravel all over our office door as she blazed out of sight.

Don't deny medical help to our most needy

Dear Editor:

While taking care of some chores in Warsaw, I ran into an old friend. I was concerned when I found out she had been denied treatment for her health issues because she was uninsured.

So many of our families, friends and neighbors are suffering because of loss of jobs, layoffs, foreclosures, etc. and have depleted their emergency funds. They are also without health insurance.

I was astounded to hear we are essentially worthless because we can't pay.

Shame on you who denied her care. Is it against the law to deny a citizen of this county health care if they are uninsured?

One politician running for office stated that he wasn't worried about the poor in this country - "We have safety nets in place to catch them," he said. Someone should have told my friend about the net waiting to catch her. Shame on you!

We have 43-million people in this country living below the poverty level. How many of our congressmen and women voted to send our tax dollars out of this country in the form of foreign aid? Shame on you! Charity begins at home.

How many millions of dollars have already been spent on negative advertising in this election season? If all this money had been set aside to help the uninsured in these United States of America, how many could have been helped? I would have thought, "God bless you," instead of Shame on you!

Medicare and Medicaid are sacred. Let's go after doctors and clinics that are siphoning off billions of dollars through fraud instead of the poor and middle class Americans who need the benefits of both programs. If you are in the health care field and have fleeced Medicare or Medicaid, shame on you!

I do not remember any section of the Hippocratic Oath that is a guideline or has instructions on how to become a multi-millionaire. I believe the oath is about service to all, not just those who can pay. If you are in it for the money, shame on you!

I offer this to all who set as their goal, the accumulation of wealth: "On the street I saw a small child, thin and shivering in threadbare clothing, with little hope of a decent meal. I became angry and said to God, 'Why did you permit this? Why don't you do something about it?' For a while God said nothing. In the night came his reply, 'I did something about it. I made you!'"

Kentucky Commentary

Legislature has failed people with redistricting fiasco

The redistricting fiasco in Frankfort has shown the Kentucky General Assembly at its worst. Here are chapter, verse and remedy:

It lets problems fester and explode. The legislature has known for more than a decade that the largely court-written rules for drawing its districts conflict in a way that requires too much splitting of medium-sized counties among districts, but it has taken no action to solve the problem.

It plays the game by its own rules. This year, House Democrats ignored the state constitution and case law and split too many counties. Senate Republicans went so far in punishing their least favorite Democrat that her district would be virtually unrepresented for two years. A judge threw out the bill and said it would be better to use the old districts despite their unbalanced populations.

Partisanship reigns. After the ruling, most legislators seemed to prefer running in their old districts, but leaders of the majorities in each chamber appealed, knowing the old lines would make it easier for them to maintain or increase their numerical advantages in this year's elections.

Self-interest trumps public interest. The political, legislative and legal wrangling over redistricting has largely brought to a standstill the business of the people in this legislative session, because legislators long ago set a ridiculously early filing deadline in order to discourage and gauge electoral opponents.

The calculating and craven set the agenda. The chances that any one legislator will be defeated because of a vote on a bill are pretty small, but lawmakers play percentages and do nothing of substance until the filing deadline passes. A third of the 60-day, even-year session is wasted, costing us about $60,000 a day, or more than $1 million. The legislature has many fine people, but too often yields to the lowest common denominator.

So, how did we come to this pass, and how do we get out of it? The filing deadline is 119 days before the primary election. Early filing deadlines discourage opposition to incumbents. So do extra campaign costs that are one result of the bizarre districts that have resulted from state Supreme Court decisions in the 1990s.

Legislators might prefer to let the court do the hard work of figuring out better rules, but any judicial modification of the county-integrity rule would be arbitrary and section 2 of the constitution says, "Absolute and arbitrary power over the lives, liberty and property of freemen exists nowhere in a republic." Our liberties include the right to vote and be represented. So, the better route is a constitutional amendment.

If the legislature were to offer voters an amendment after this year's fiasco, they might see it as self-serving and reject it. So it should also authorize a nonpartisan panel that would draw the lines, as is done in 13 states, and submit the bill to up-or-down votes without amendment. The panel could use online technology to let the public suggest district lines, as some states have done with success.

Yes, it's a stretch to think lawmakers would give up most of the power to draw their districts, and House Speaker Greg Stumbo scoffed at the idea when I advanced it to him. But the new system could be made effective after the 2020 census to make it more palatable to current legislators, many of whom will have retired by 2022. The longer they wait, the more that factor would fade.

The bottom line is the legislator has proved itself unqualified to redistrict without help. Let's open it up to the people. They are supposed to choose their representatives. In too many cases now, representatives choose their people.

Glencoe council hopes RT 16 will re-opened soon

By Mike Dickerson
News Reporter

Glencoe City Councilman JuJu Sullivan said at Monday's meeting that State Transportation Cabinet engineer Kevin Rush was not encouraging when Sullivan recently asked him about re-opening Highway 16 from U. S. 127 in Glencoe to Cemetery Hill Road. This section of road was closed early last year after heavy rains caused a major slip on the steep road surface.

The road closure forces traffic on Highway 16 going to and from Glencoe to use Cemetery Hill Road to its intersection with U.S. 127. When making a left turn from Cemetery onto 127, drivers have a difficult time seeing to the left due to the angle of the intersection at the crest of a hill. Additionally, large trucks and school buses often don't have enough room to make the turn without backing up in the middle of it.

The school bus problem makes city officials nervous. Nevertheless, the State Highway Department has no plans to repair the road, which would cost about $160,000.

"It's a matter of time before we have a serious accident and injuries involving our children", said Sullivan. Mayor Jim Nantz agreed and expressed his frustration over the situation.

In other Glencoe Council news:

•Council voted 3-1 (members Leeza Nantz and Julia Proctor were absent) to spend an additional $850 on top of the $4,500 that's already been allocated for drainage, grading and repair work for the city shelter. The added cost is necessary to prevent damage to the shelter from water runoff. Council member Charlotte Adams voted against the additional repair work, saying, "There are other projects in town that need to be done, we have an awful lot of money tied up with this job."

•Glencoe resident Jim Edmondson complained to council about his agricultural property being taxed by the city. He said the property he bought 30 years ago was annexed after the sale and no easements were ever granted to permit two sewer lines to cross the property.

He told council no other municipal services exist on the land, the city does not maintain an existing street adjacent to the land, and when equipment was stolen from the property a couple of years ago, police never came to investigate after he filed a report. He has refused to pay taxes during the past three years but did bring them current this year.

Council member Rick Dunaway said he would ask the sewer board to investigate records to determine if easements were properly granted. Mayor Nantz also told council he would speak with the PVA office to see what could be done.

•Glencoe Frontier Days is tentatively planned for August 24-26 and will feature a major car show. Sponsors and funding are being sought. Details will be forthcoming.

Some of our friends have been out and about or have entertained visitors recently, and here are some of their activities:

Alex and Bob Weldon had a surprise visit last weekend from an old high school friend of Bob's, John Sutton of Queens, N.Y. and his father, Dr. Paul Sutton. The Suttons have come to many Thanksgiving dinners at Seven Pines over the years. Betty Lukashuk and Bob Weldon attended the symphony at Music Hall in Cincinnati on Saturday night.

Skip and Penny Smith have just returned from a 7-day cruise in the Caribbean. Before beginning their adventure aboard the luxury Norwegian Cruiseline, they stopped in Naples, Florida, to visit Penny's aunt, Alice Barkmeier. Then, along with several friends, they joined a group of about 50 people to cruise the beautiful Caribbean, where the water shifts from aqua to turquoise to deep blue, and where there is colorful colonial history and duty-free shopping. Of the numerous islands in the Caribbean, only two percent are inhabited. They saw Honduras and Belize, as well as two lovely spots in Mexico, Casa de Maya, and Cozumel. Penny said the temperature was in the mid-80s the whole time and they thoroughly enjoyed the tours and, of course, the shopping. She said the crew was very friendly, the food was excellent, and she would love to go again.

Mary Jane McCarty went to Louisville, Friday night, to visit her daughter and son-in-law, Greg and Meagan Marcum. On Saturday, they all attended the second birthday celebration of Harper Stragner, the little daughter of Matt and Erin Stragner. They enjoyed dinner at Red Robin's, then went back to the Stragner home for presents and cupcakes. Everyone had a marvelous time, and Harper especially enjoyed staying up past her bedtime! HAPPY BIRTHDAY, HARPER.

Diane Young enjoyed a day this week with her mother; her cousin, Margie; and her brother, Ed. She had a wonderful day, Thursday, with her two grandchildren, who spent the day and night with her. She and friend, Lori Auton, enjoyed a fun night out at Belterra, Friday evening, but they didn't win anything. Diane met a lot of friends and neighbors at Clyde's Carryout, Saturday evening, and pronounced it a great place to catch up and talk to people. After church, Sunday morning, Diane went to a Mary Kay party at the home of her daughter-in-law. Sounds like a fun and busy week!

Shirley Chipman's Friday night guest was Mae Wallace. Saturday morning guests were Austin Blankenship and Jama Morrison. On Saturday night, Shirley, Aileen Chipman, and Ruthie Niebergall attended the spaghetti supper at the extension office which was the kick-off for Relay For Life. Shirley's Sunday luncheon guests were Lanette and Jama Morrison, Branden, Derina, Savannah, Autaun, and Butterball Doolin. Ethan Moore was a Sunday afternoon visitor.

Thursday afternoon visitors at Betty and Boyd Lionberger's home were Keith and Carol West. Betty served hot tea and homemade muffins to help ward off the cold. On Saturday, Boyd traveled to Owen County to deliver a care package to his son-in-law, Steve Smith, who had fallen in his bathroom and injured his back. Betty sent him a heating pad and some pork stew and cornbread. On Sunday after church, Betty and Boyd entertained her daughter, Julie Hamilton; grandchildren, Matthew and Hannah Hamilton; Kristina and Rob Turner, and Jacalyn Williamson. Betty served a hearty dinner of beans, baked potatoes, cabbage with sausage, fried bologna, and cornbread. Hannah and Jacalyn spent their time putting together a Valentine box and making Valentines for their friends. Remember doing that?

Alice and Ron Johnson traveled to Verona Elementary on Saturday to see their grandchildren, Brooke and Ethan Alexander, play basketball. Following the game, the couple then drove to Florence to enjoy dinner at Red Lobster.

Barbara Finrock went to the Color Program on Tuesday evening at the Extension Office. Barb found out she is a "Winter", and her best color is red. On Thursday, she and her dear friend of 40 years, Carolyn James, drove to Edgewood to enjoy lunch at Szechuan Gardens, and had a fun time.

Betty Wright and Mary Jo Mylor went to visit Joanna Haymond this past Monday and took her flowers and Valentine candy. Betty said that Joanna is enjoying lots of visitors, including some of her former students. She is doing great, and expects to return home in about two weeks.

Delores and Terry Hopperton hosted a 17th birthday celebration for their grandson, Josh. Other guests were Mishelle, Steve, Kaleb, and Kera Frontz; and Brad, Madelyn, and Carter Hopperton. Lila was sick, so she and Jenny were unable to come, but Delores sent dinner and birthday cake home to them so they didn't miss out totally. HAPPY BIRTHDAY, JOSH.

Puppy Report: Mary Rae Mattox reports that little girl-puppy, Peanut, made her first visit to the vet. last Thursday. She received her second shot (ouch), was a good girl, and will go again in three weeks. Mary Rae said Peanut was quiet all afternoon, but was her old rambunctious self again by evening. What she really needs is a visit with her Aunt Lonni for some extra spoiling, dontcha think?

Phantom Valentine

I know you're my Valentine because I wake thinking of you. I go to sleep thinking of you. When I hear certain songs, I think of you. Do you know how much I love you? I will always love you. Like the flowers need the rain, you know I need you.

I can close my eyes and see the sunlight bouncing off your long golden hair. I can see your warm smile and my love grows stronger. I can see the shape of your beautiful body in the background of the sunset. I can smell your heavenly scent that drives me wild with passion. I love how you care for, and help others while never complaining about your own problems.

The goodness in your very soul stirs my heart to no end. I am so very blessed to have you as my Valentine, to know you, to love you all these years. Thank you, and I thank God for you!

I will always be your Valentine.
And I will always Love You.

Drugs and alcohol can lead to violence

The month of February is National Teen Dating Violence Awareness Month. Valentine's Day week has the highest rate for teen dating, so it is very important to talk about dating violence. Did you know that one out of three teens will experience some sort of dating violence in their lifetime?

That is not the only staggering statistic when it comes to teen dating violence.

*80% of teens say they know someone who has been controlled by a partner

*60% of teens say they know someone who has been physically abused.

*29% of teens say they, themselves, have been physically abused by someone they were dating *one in four teens who has been in a serious relationship say their boyfriend or girlfriend has tried to prevent them from spending time with friends and family.

Read more at <http://www.care2.com/causes/love-is-respect-february-is-teen-dating-violence-awareness-mo>.

Those are very telling and, to be honest, scary statistics. The fact is that many of these acts of violence happen while a person is under the influence of drugs or alcohol. Drugs and alcohol lead to a lot of problems in our society. If teens are abusing girlfriends or boyfriends in their teens, the abuse will most likely continue on into their adult relationship.

Be aware of what is going on in your teens' lives. Be aware of the person they are "dating". Make sure to keep an open line of communication with your teen about drugs and alcohol as well as other things that stem from such abuse. Being involved can help change our community one person at a time.

Are your footsteps worth following?

Life Line Screenings offered at local church

Paint Lick Baptist Church will host Life Line Screening on Friday, March 2, at the church, located at 55 Highway 1992.

Residents living in and around Warsaw can be screened to reduce their risk of having a stroke or bone fracture. Screenings identify potential cardiovascular conditions such as blocked arteries and irregular heart rhythm, abdominal aortic aneurysms, and hardening of the arteries in the legs, which is a strong predictor of heart disease. A bone density screening to assess osteoporosis risk is also offered and is appropriate for both men and women.

Packages start at $149. All five screenings take 6-90 minutes to complete. Pre-registration is required. For more information regarding the screenings or to schedule an appointment, call 1-877-237-1287 or visit Life Line Screening's web site at www.lifelinescreening.com.

Four key points everyone needs to know:

*Stroke is the third leading cause of death and a leading cause of permanent disability.

*Eighty percent of stroke victims had no apparent warning signs prior to their stroke.

*Preventive ultrasound screenings can help one avoid a stroke.

*Screenings are fast, noninvasive, painless, affordable and convenient.

TERMS OF SALE: The property shall be sold as a whole. The purchaser may pay all or part of the purchase price in cash, and may pay the balance of the purchase price on a credit of 30 days after date of sale; said credit shall be granted only upon the execution by the purchaser of bond, with surety thereon, and said surety shall be a lending institution, fidelity or surety company authorized and doing business in Kentucky or other surety approved by the Master Commissioner; an authorized officer of the surety must be present at the sale or must have given the Master Commissioner adequate assurance of its intent to be surety prior to or at the sale; said Bond shall be, and shall remain, a lien on the property sold as additional security for the payment of the full purchase price, and shall have the full force and effect of a Judgment; and said Bond shall bear interest at the rate of Twelve (12%) Percent per annum until paid. The purchaser shall be required to pay the sum of 10% of the bid amount in cash or certified check on the purchase at the time of sale. Risk of loss shall pass to the successful bidder at the close of the sale. The successful bidder at the sale shall, at bidder's own expense, carry fire and extended insurance coverage on any improvements from the date of sale until the purchase price is fully paid, with a loss payable clause to the Master Commissioner of the Gallatin Circuit Court. Failure of the purchaser to effect such insurance shall not affect the validity of the sale or the purchaser's liability thereunder, but shall entitle, but not require, a lien holder herein, after giving notice to the Master Commissioner, to effect said insurance and furnish the policy or evidence thereof to the Master Commissioner, and the premium thereon or the proper portion thereof shall be charged to the purchaser as purchaser's cost. The property shall be sold subject to ad valorem taxes for the year 2012 and all subsequent years thereafter; easements, restrictions and stipulations of record; assessments for public improvements levied against the property, if any; existing zoning ordinances, statutes, laws, or regulations; and any facts which an inspection and accurate survey of the property may disclose. BIDDERS SHALL BE PREPARED TO COMPLY WITH THESE TERMS.

What's all the fuss about salt?

Would you believe that bread and rolls are the number 1 source of salt in the American diet? Consider that breads and rolls aren't really saltier than many other foods, but people tend to eat a lot of them. You may have heard about this surprising finding from a government report released last week. The list compiled by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) includes a list of the top 10 sources of sodium. Salty snacks actually came in at the bottom of the list. Again, you have to consider how much bread you eat in comparison to salty snacks, such as potato chips.

Salt is the main source of sodium for most people, and sodium increases the risk of high blood pressure, a major cause of heart disease and stroke. We all know that most of us get too much salt/sodium, mostly from processed and restaurant foods — not added from the salt shaker.

It's possible to eat a whole bunch of sodium without it seeming to taste salty. According to the CDC, breads and rolls account for about 7% of the salt that the average American eats in a day. Next on the list: cold cuts and cured meats; pizza; fresh and processed poultry (chicken and turkey); soups; fast-food hamburgers; fast-food sandwiches; and cheese. Rounding out the list — and accounting for about 3% each — are spaghetti and other pasta dishes; meatloaf and other meat casserole dishes; and snacks like potato chips and pretzels.

Health officials say no one should eat more than 2,300 milligrams of sodium a day, equal to about a teaspoon of salt. Certain people, such as those with high blood pressure, should eat even less. But the average sodium consumption in the U.S. is around 3,300 milligrams, the CDC study found. Only 1 in 10 Americans meet the teaspoon guideline.

The amount of sodium in food types can vary. For example, a slice of white bread can have between 80 and 230 milligrams of sodium. One cup of canned chicken noodle soup has between 100 and 940 milligrams. And 3 ounces of luncheon meat has between 450 and 1,050 milligrams. The new CDC report is based on surveys of more than 7,200 people in 2007 and 2008, including nearly 3,000 children. Participants were surveyed twice, each time answering detailed questions about what they had eaten over the previous day. Researchers then broke down what they ate into categories, and assigned sodium amounts.

Your mother was right when she told you to eat your fruits and vegetables. I bet your mother also told you to eat smaller portions and slow down when you eat. Now she's probably telling you don't salt your food at the table and to read the label in order to reduce the amount of salt in your diet. Scientists today are backing mom up...maybe we should listen to her and follow her advice!

YOUR ATTENTION PLEASE!

Ask Doctor Dirt...

By David Hull

A WORD FROM DR. DIRT:

(not to be confused with a dirty word)

Folks, I'm always getting calls about how to make more money from farm woodlands; well, there's your opportunity to learn how to do just that. This workshop is being held in Jackson, KY (eastern Kentucky), so it's a bit of a drive, but I think it'll be worth the trip. If anybody out there in newspaper land is interested, let me know and maybe we can put together a group. Just sayin'.

Dr. Dirt.

WORKSHOP FOCUSES ON SPECIALTY FOREST PRODUCTS

Properly managing

woodlands can yield more than just timber products. Under a well-managed forest canopy, an abundance of specialty forest crops and products are achievable. To help woodland owners and natural resources professionals discover alternative income sources, the University of Kentucky Department of Forestry and Cooperative Extension Service, along with Rural Action Inc., are hosting a one-day workshop on March 9.

Managing Woodlands for Specialty Forest Products, from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. EST, at the UK College of Agriculture's Robinson Center for Appalachian Resource Sustainability in Jackson, is free and open to the public. The agenda includes:

"The Woodland Resource: Managing for Multiple Benefits" presented by Billy Thomas, UK extension forester

"Growing American Ginseng and Goldenseal in an Appalachian Hardwood Forest" and "Ramps: Cultivation for Conservation and Profit" presented by Tanner Filyaw, non-timber forest products educator with the Rural Action Forestry Program in Southeast Ohio

"Producing and Marketing Gourmet Woodland Mushrooms" and "Beekeeping 101: Managing Habitats for Bee Forage and Honey Production" presented by Deborah Hill, UK forestry extension professor

"Pawpaw: The Native Fruit of the Appalachian Forest" presented by Kirk Pomper, UK adjunct associate professor of horticulture

You may be surprised to find out how well-managed woodlands can be sources for some high-income generating products. And it doesn't have to be an either/or situation—timber or non-timber products. You'll be introduced to the abundance that could be right outside your backdoor.

Registration is required by March 7. To RSVP, contact either Jackie Allen at 606-666-2438, ext. 285. Or, you can always call David Hull at the Gallatin County Extension Service, 567-5481.

Doctor Dirt is really David Hull, Gallatin County Extension Agent for Agriculture. If you have farm or garden questions for the good doctor, stop by or call the extension office at 567-5481. Or, email him at dhull@uky.edu.

I HAVE THREE WORDS ABOUT FIRST FARMERS...
THEY'RE THE BEST!

“What can I say; they understand my business more than any other bank I have ever worked with over the years. They listen, they know farming and they know me...without them, I couldn't do anything!”

“First Farmers gives me peace of mind... I know I have a partner that will work with me; now that makes a difference.”
